

Professor Jennifer Bean and the students of
ECO-CINEMA: DOCUMENTING MODERN CULTURE
(Honors 211/C LIT 397)

invite you to a screening session of 9 documentary shorts produced in our class this quarter.

*Allen Auditorium (ground floor, Suzallo/Allen Library)
Wednesday, March 20, 2:30-5:30*

Program

THE DUWAMISH: BEAUTY IN AN INDUSTRIAL RIVER (11 MIN) CHRIS GELON

Learn the history behind the hazardous Duwamish River, and how the community can help restore the beautiful waterway

CHOPPED (12 MIN) NIKKI KIGA

A look at sustainable food options and efforts initiated by farmers, students and chefs in Seattle

PLANT DOC (12 MIN) HANNAH KEYES & JAMES SHERPA

The story of one doctor's passion for plants and his historical effect on the "evergreen" state

1,270 MILES: A CONVERSATION (20 MIN) ALLISON ROSS

This dialogic documentary explores what a conversation might be like among stakeholders concerning salmon restoration in the Columbia Basin

DON'T THINK ABOUT ELEPHANTS (15 MIN) TAJ TAHER

Follow the director's journey as he grapples with personal and philosophic questions of the environmental movement's use of animals

WASHINGTON STATE: THE NUCLEAR STATE (19 MIN) JINSUNG KIM

Have you heard of Hanford? Bangor Naval Base?

GET YOUR HANDS DIRTY (10 MIN) EVELYN XU

A look at farmers' lives and the situation of local agriculture in the Northwest

EVERYTHING IN GOD'S HANDS (10 MIN) IZUMI HANSEN

Found-footage film on nuclear testing and its effect in the Marshall Islands following WWII

DIE-T: THE MALNUTRITION OF COLLEGE LIFE (15 MIN) TIMOTHY HAN

Watch as four UW students describe their unhealthy "college-life diet" and how it affects them personally, academically, and socially.

a brief Q/A session with the directors will follow while ballots are tallied